Mid-Year Commencement
Planned for Class of 300

January graduates, most of them bootstrappers and College of Adult Education students, will have their own commencement exercise this year.

Though the plan has not been made definite, President Bail said there has been "virtually no opposition to the idea and enthusiasm among the graduates is high."

Over 300 Grads.

He said the ceremony has been tentatively set for 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 28.

OU has not held a mid-year commencement for more than 10 years due to small classes but the president pointed out that there are more than 300 seniors receiving their degrees this January.

Exercise Is Favored

Deans of the various colleges were asked to poll their prospective graduates and most reported a favorable opinion towards the January exercise.

Dr. Bail noted that mid-year graduates in the past have been invited to participate in the June commencement but that this year, especially with the bootstrappers, "so many are scattered all over the world by June that it is impossible for them to return."

Bonner Considers Election a Success

Omaha University's Dr. Thomas Bonner, write-in candidate for Congressman from the second district, racked up over five thousand votes in Tuesday's election. Dr. Bonner considers this a virtual success.

He pointed out that his five thousand votes are the largest number for a candidate not on the ballot in the history of Nebraska politics.

"I am sure," said Dr. Bonner, "there would have been more, but some of the voters got a little confused and wrote me in for Municipal Judge and Senator."

"Others remembered that they wanted to write me in after they had already marked their ballot. Instead of going through a long involved process to change their original vote, they forgot about it."

Dr. Bonner said that he wouldn't deny the possibility of seeking a regular party nomination in the next election as long as he did so well as a write in candidate this time.

"I am pleased and flattered," said Dr. Bonner, "at the support which I was given and I want to thank warmly all who helped make this campaign the success that it was."

Tickets on Sale
For 'Point of No
Return' Drama

Tickets for University Theatre's first production of the year will be available 8:30 to 4:30 Monday, Nov. 14-18.

"Point of No Return" by Paul Osborn and based on the novel by John P. Marquand will be on stage Nov. 17-19.

The play deals with a man who is within grasping distance of success, and is now plagued with dubiety about the worth of his accomplishments and his long-sought goal.

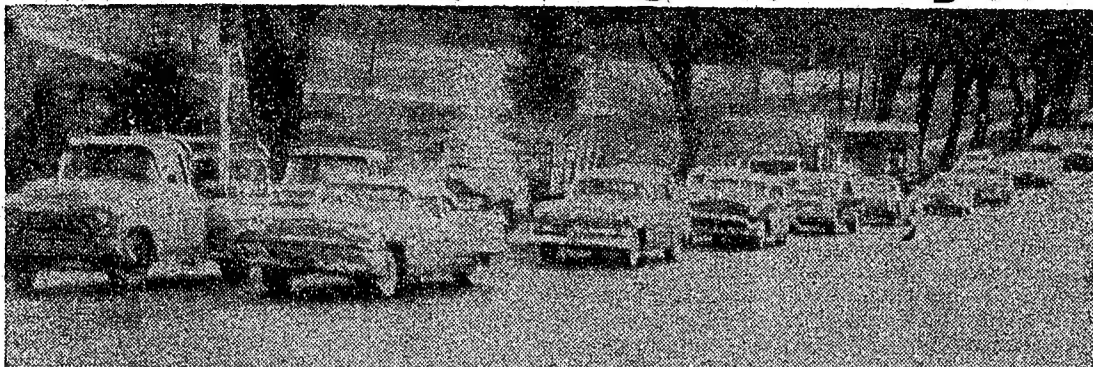

This re-evaluation of his climb presents an engaging personal view of the "successful" man and those affected by his ambitions.

Doug Nabb, Merle Reiff, Vija Briedis and Ted Mackechnie will appear in the lead roles.

Play direction is in the hands of Dr. Edwin L. Clark, head of University Theatre, and production handling by Jerry Rojo, technical director.

Activity card holders are entitled to one ticket. Only two tickets, obtained by activity cards, are available to one person. Any number of tickets may be purchased for $1.50 apiece.

Sets for the production were constructed by play production class. University Players comprise the acting company, backstage crew and ushers.

Traffic Problem? Answers
Sought in Driving Survey

Heavy traffic to back up at 60th and Dodge streets as west Omaha commuters head home. Traffic planners seek new ways to hasten this flow and make it more efficient.

Speaker Urges
Public Support

By Bill Vogt

Col. James Rasmussen reviewed the position of the U.S. in the arms race Wednesday at the fifth Institute of World Affairs.

Col. Rasmussen, commander of the 392nd Combat Support Group, Vandenberg Air Force Base, said that as Russian boldness and military strength increase, the U.S. can face its immediate problems only if defense and satellite programs are accelerated with public support.

Another determining factor is if Russia is impressed with the fact that a single surprise attack is insufficient for military victory, and that retaliation would be swift.

He said that the U.S. is now capable of waging an all-out strategic global war, and could launch an intercontinental ballistic missile within 45 minutes of being alerted.

"U.S. missile crews are widely scattered," he said, "some of them stationed in well-protected positions, and others in moving trains."

Col. Rasmussen said that the manned bomber has not been outdated by missiles, but has gained improved effectiveness (Continued on Page 8.)

Of the thousands of cars traveling West Dodge Street every day, how many turn into the University of Omaha?

How many students enter from the south, from Leavenworth Street or Happy Hollow Boulevard?

What time do they arrive?

President Milo Bail wants to know?

To find the answers he has enlisted the aid of a survey team which next Monday will begin a week-long study of the driving habits of OU students.

Counters hired by the University will be stationed at each campus entrance and exit compiling statistics from 6 a. m. until 10 p. m. each day through Friday night.

Conceding the existence of a traffic problem, Dr. Bail pointed out that "we've got to know what that problem is before any possible solution can be given serious consideration."

He labeled the survey a prerequisite to any corrective steps.

"I think the results will prove both valuable and interesting," he said.

The situation was brought to light last week when a group of city planners revealed a scheme "to ease the congestion" by building an "access road" across the campus frontage.

Though hesitant to criticize the plan, Dr. Bail indicated a belief that the downtown thinkers were guilty of rash thought.

"I think we're being blamed for a lot more traffic than actually exists," he declared.

Of the 15 hundred parking stalls on campus, he stressed, "nearly nine hundred are filled by 7:30 p. m."

The point is, he said, that most of the student traffic has already arrived by the time Dodge Street is receiving its normal rush-hour load.

Suggesting an alternative, less radical plan, the president said he would like to start with an experimental shut-down of the Sixtieth Street traffic signal.

"I think that after a week or so without the advantage of the left turn light students would begin to use the other entrances," he said.

Such a "persuasion program" would be "a step in the right direction," he added.

For the future the president expressed a desire for some sort of interchange, probably at the Happy Hollow intersection, to better facilitate entering the University from Dodge Street.

"It would also benefit the entire residential area to the south and west of the campus," he said.

"At any rate," he concluded, "we'll know more about what must be done after the survey presents us with some concrete facts."

Sr. Exec Day
Set for Tuesday

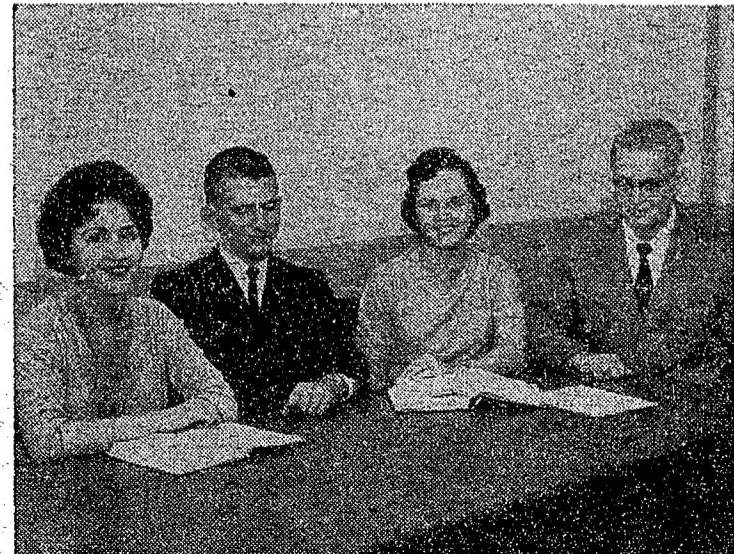

Business and industry in the Omaha area will open its doors Nov. 15 to 200 Omaha University seniors participating in Senior Executive Day.

This program allows graduating students to see the mechanism of American business and industry.

Students will visit Continental Can Co., Cudahy Packing Co., Federal Reserve Bank, Guarantee Mutual Life, Kilpatrick, McKesson and Robbins, Mutual of Omaha, Northern Natural Gas Co., Omaha National Bank, Omaha World-Herald, Peter Pan Bakers, Sheraton-Fontenelle Hotel, United Air Lines, Union Pacific Railroad and Western Electric.

Seniors participating must report to the Field House promptly at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 15, to the company host of the firm they will visit. Buses will leave for the respective firms at 8:30.

The Corinthian Society, highest academic honor group on campus, initiated 10 new members Thursday at a dinner meeting in the Student Center.

New initiates and their majors are as follows:

matics; Mrs. Linda Goldman, secondary education in history and English; Marilyn Hendricks, history; Drusilla Inman, secondary education in home economics and instrumental music.

It was the largest initiation group since the 13-member group in 1958, according to President Lowell Baumer.

Dr. Ivo Lambi, visiting professor of history from Estonia, addressed the Corinthians on aspects of comparative American, Canadian and European education systems.

Dr. Thomas N. Bonner, chairman of the social science department, was unanimously accepted as sponsor of the Society.

Dance Date Changed

The November 18 party scheduled for the Junior Teen Age Club has been cancelled due to the dance at Bellevue High School the same date.

Two other dates have been set for the dance, November 11 and 25.

Narcotic Meeting To Be Held at OU

Recognition and behavior patterns of narcotic addicts will be one of the topics discussed at the Narcotic Enforcement Conference for Nebraska law enforcement officers at O.U. Nov. 16.

The conference, arranged by the U.S. Treasury Department Bureau of Narcotics, the Omaha police department and the O.U. College of Adult Education, will be from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Two of the speakers will be C. Harold Ostler, Chief of the Omaha police department; and Major Raymond Mayville, chief, law enforcement and resources division, SAC, Offutt Air Force Base.

Some of the topics the speakers will cover are "Legal Aspects of Narcotics Enforcement," "Identification of Narcotics and Drugs" and "Drug Traffic—Local and International."

OU Places Second In Debate Tourney

OU debaters captured second place in the 21-school kick-off Tournament held here Nov. 4.

Second place in the Class A debate was taken by the OU team of Jim Gammon, John Cady, Bette Jafek and Al Henderson.

There were 20 debates of which OU students won 14.

John Cady was the highest of Omaha discussants and Dick Bakkerud took second place in extemporaneous speaking.

Others participating in the tournament were Ron Bojanski, Rod Hansen, Bill Stillmoeck, Max Voigt. Lyle Franzen was tournament manager.

Speed Builds Squash

A rich man took his son to a university and told the president to get the boy through to a degree in a hurry.

"Yes," said the president, "I can do it, but remember that God takes years to produce a tree, but can develop a squash in just a few weeks."

Rachford Foresees 25 Percent Increase in Intern Program

Dr. George Rachford, director of the graduate division, has announced that during the forthcoming school year there will be approximately 25 interns at OU. This represents a 25 per cent increase over the past year.

Dr. Rachford, once an intern himself, indorses the program wholeheartedly. He said that it provides "excellent experience for the student who plans to follow a teaching career, particularly at the college level."

Requirements indicate that an intern must carry 12 hours of college work each semester. Duties as an intern equal three hours per semester. The various departments on campus utilize their assigned interns in different ways.

Generally, they are required to assist in the grading of papers and to do research work for members of the department staff. They also lead small discussion groups related to their major field of study. An intern will spend approximately 24 hours per week at his duties.

An intern receives a financial grant of $1600 from OU for a year's study. He also receives free tuition and related fees.

"The program provides an excellent opportunity for the student who would be unable to do graduate work due to financial reasons," Dr. Rachford said.

All persons interested in doing graduate work as an intern may inquire for details at the Graduate Office.

Placement Office Survey Shows High Salaries for OU Grads

Thirty OU graduates are earning $10,000 a year or better, according to a recent survey of 1955-59 graduates.

Placement Office Director William Gerbracht sent out 1,050 questionnaires; 43 per cent were returned. Findings include:

—Average monthly salary of male graduates over the five-year period is $500-549. The top salaried men had degrees in liberal arts, accounting, business administration, engineering, journalism and marketing.

—Average monthly salary for women over the five-year period is $350-389. Women with degrees in liberal arts, fine arts, journalism and home economics earned $649, $549, $499 and $499 respectively. Lowest salaries ran in the liberal and fine arts fields.

—Highest average salary for men today is $650-699 for 1955 graduates, while the lowest average salary is $400-499 per month for 1959 graduates.

—Highest average salary today for women is $500-599 for 1958 graduates, while the lowest is $250-299 for 1959 graduates.

—Highest average salaries generally went to those with business degrees with ranges from $600 to $699 a month.

—Graduates of 1955 led in graduate studies with 64 per cent for women and 36 per cent for men.

The survey shows that 1955 male graduates have been on their current job for an average of three years; women, an average of two and one-half years.

How does OU tie in with the rest of the nation's colleges? "Results will be compared to national estimates and trends," Mr. Gerbracht said, "just as soon as all questionnaire items are tabulated."

Fraternity and sorority pledges have been capturing so many actives on skip night that only a few actives remain to find them.

ODK Recognizes Good Leadership High Scholarship

By Karen Pope

Membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, senior men's honorary, is based on scholarship and leadership. The purpose of ODK is to recognize good scholarship and good leadership.

Participation in athletics, student publications, speech, music and dramatics are also carefully considered before ODK selects its members.

Election of members is done on a strict point basis. ODK president, Lyle Franzen, said that persons are not admitted to ODK because they have a friend in ODK. Personal feelings do not enter into the selection of members.

Omicron Delta Kappa is a national honorary for men only. There are 97 circles (chapters) of ODK throughout the US. Franzen said that ODK is rated on an equal basis with Phi Beta Kappa.

While ODK is not a service organization it does help in such school activities as Open House.

ODK held a meeting Nov. 9 in the Student Center to discuss the possibility of tapping senior men for membership at the close of first semester. Junior men will be tapped in the spring of the second semester.

This year's officers of ODK are Lyle Franzen, president; Lowell Baumer, vice-president; Lee Perkins, treasurer and Dean Donald Pfisterer, secretary.

Sponsors are Dean Robert Harper, Dean Donald Pfisterer and instructor C. Glenn Lewis.

Scandinavia Calls Those Interested In Foreign Study

The Scandinavian Seminar, one of the largest overseas study programs in the United States, is accepting applications for the 1961-62 study program in Denmark, Finland, Norway or Sweden.

Those eligible for the program include teachers, college graduates and college undergraduates interested in a junior-year-abroad program.

The cost for tuition, room and board for the nine months abroad, language materials and transportation from New York to Copenhagen is $1,480.

A limited number of scholarships and loans are awarded each year to qualified applicants. Persons interested in the program should send applications to Scandinavian Seminar, 127B East 73 St., New York 21, N. Y.

The Scandinavian Seminar was started in 1949 and is incorporated by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York.

During most of the nine months in Scandinavia, students in the Seminar study separately from one another, so that, with faculty guidance, all are able to develop their specific interests without conflict.

After studying the language of the country they visit for three months participants study at "folkehojskoler," an adult education center. While at "folkehojskoler" participants study humanities and social sciences. They also live with a Scandinavian roommate.

Renown Dancers Perform Nov. 23

The internationally famous Duquesne University Tamburitans will perform at the Omaha Civic Auditorium Music Hall Nov. 23.

Admission to the 8 p.m. event will cost $2.

The song and dance artists from Pennsylvania will present folk arrangements from several countries.

Students Warned To Respect Rules

With winter only a snowstorm away, OU campus cops this week, issued a reminder to all student drivers that the Omaha City Council adopted two new rules pertaining to snowtime driving.

The first requires every vehicle to be equipped with either show tires or chains whenever "snow, sleet or freezing rain cause slippery or hazardous conditions."

Any car in violation of this ordinance may be towed from the streets by police and the driver assessed the $12 fee.

In addition the driver may be charged with obstructing traffic and fined up to $500 and/or sentenced to six months in jail.

The second of the two rules passed last summer concerns parking whenever a "snow hazard" exists.

Parking will be allowed only on one side of residential streets. It will be permitted on the even-numbered sides on even-numbered calendar days and vice versa.

There will be no parking between 7 p.m. and 6 a.m. on main thoroughfares such as Dodge Street or the Radial Highway. No parking will be permitted downtown during those hours.

Mead Speaker for 'University Nights'

Dr. Margaret Mead, noted anthropologist, will speak in a telelecture at 8 p.m. tonight at the Eppley Conference Center Auditorium.

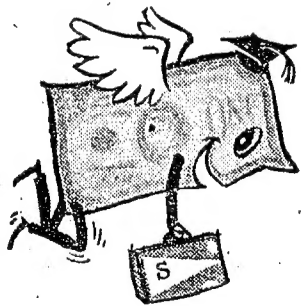

"An Anthropologist Looks at American Society" is the topic of the talk which will originate in New York.

Dr. Mead's lecture will be followed by a question and answer session. Asking questions will be a four-member panel headed by Dr. E. G. McCurtain, head of O.U.'s sociology department. Other panel members are J. O. Grantham, Mrs. James Merriam and Cecil Stewart.

Dr. Mead will also answer questions put to her by the audience.

The telelecture is part of OU's "University Nights" series.

Color of Socks Poses Problem

Varsity cheerleaders have turned in their old cheer-leading uniforms for new outfits of red, black and white. These new outfits were first worn at the Nov. 4 game with Washburn.

The seven girls on the squad have black sweaters with an eight-inch high red, white and black "O" worn on the front of their sweaters. The black pleated skirts have red and white inset pleats.

The only male member of the squad, Chuck Colvin, is sporting black slacks and a black sweater.

Only one item remains unfinished in the new uniforms. There is some debate among the girls about what color socks will be worn with the uniform. Chuck, however has no problem since he doesn't consider the color of his socks a vital part of his outfit.

The idea and design for the new cheerleading outfits was formulated by the cheerleaders. The girls worked all summer on the design. The uniforms were financed by the Inter-pep Committee and the Student Council.

PE Club Fences

"On guard" brought fencers and foils to attention at the meeting of the Majors and Minors Club last Monday night as fencing techniques were demonstrated by Kathryn M. Schaafe.

After donning the protective jackets and masks, the club members were shown the proper way to grip the foil and how to assume the "on guard" stance. Such skills as the advance, the retreat, the lunge, the disengage, the parry, and the "touch" were emphasized.

Other activities at the meeting included ping pong and shuffleboard. The next meeting of the M & M's will be Monday, Dec. 5th.

Floor Cracks Quit e Normal

Those numerous cracks appearing in the floor of the Applied Arts building don't foretell any structural collapse.

Buildings and Grounds Director Clarence Lefler said that the cracking is normal in most new, big buildings.

"Every architect will give you a different reason as to why it happens," said Lefler, "but it doesn't preclude anything serious, nor does it necessarily mean any fault in building construction or design."

He pointed out that long corridors are especially subject to this process.

The Buildings and Grounds Department has been filling in the cracks and will grind down the dry cement mixture to the level of the floor.

Because the building is relatively new, the floor should retain its original appearance to a reasonable degree.

Problem of Surplus Hits After Election

By Ken Zimmerman

Just as everyone predicted, Kennedy's election produced a huge surplus across the nation.

It hit equally the farmers, business and labor.

And so far as I know, no corrective steps have been taken or are even planned.

What can we do with the millions of campaign buttons, bumper stickers and red, white and blue straw hats?

The buttons, of course, make attractive paper clips if they are the standard fold-over variety. Or you can decorate them with a little nail polish and have a nice set of ear-rings.

On the other hand many persons insist on stowing away one Kennedy-Johnson emblem and one Nixon-Lodge button knowing that some day in the distant future the local newspaper will run a feature story on "campaign buttons of the past" and will be looking for examples from each campaign.

The election also produced its share of political jokes.

There's the new drink, the Kennedy cocktail—"America on the Rocks."

And Nixon's famous last words: "I don't need Minnesota, I've got South Carolina and California."

Those fantastic machines used by the TV networks for prognosticating the outcome as the returns poured in hardly proved their worth to me.

Never once, as they whirled and clicked, did I see them accurately predict the margin of victory.

True they generally gave the nod to Kennedy but in most cases it was by a wide margin, setting the odds at 333 to one that he would make it.

Gaining something like 50.2 per cent of the vote doesn't seem to me like the sort of finish the handicappers would have been giving long odds on.

Of course they were fascinating to watch. Flashing lights and all that sort of thing give a sort of science-fiction air to the whole thing.

They reminded me of a bit of Bob Newhart's latest party record about the ultimate in automation.

He describes the eventual evolution of machines to the point where one electronic monster is retained for the sole purpose of firing other machines.

Speaking of machines, I ran into a fellow from Council Bluffs where they "vote better electrically."

And this is the truth.

The guy actually didn't know if he had voted for Kennedy or Nixon.

"I got confused," he lamented. "There was an extra set of buttons and levers . . . I'm not sure if I voted for anyone at all."

One thing is certain, however, as the last of the tumult and shouting dies down.

It was quite a campaign.

And as far as I'm concerned it went way too long. By the time November rolled around the issues (what there was of them) had been cussed and discussed so much that both candidates were forced to clutch at straws for anything to talk about.

It resulted in a lot of petty debate tiresome and repetition.

Daily Lessons Instill Realism

In an attempt to "develop imagination and quick thinking" in his students Don Kemp, journalism instructor, has given his Journalism 115 labs several surprise assignments.

Kemp told his students to take pencil and pad in hand, leave the classroom and scour the campus for news. The story they dug up was to be handed in and graded.

As the students left the classrooms in search of a story, Kemp dryly commented to them that "If a man is killed in an auto accident on Dodge Street in front of the University I'll accept it as news."

Many would-be journalists flocked to the Student Center in search of a story and a cup of coffee.

One male member of the class strolled over to the pep bowl and casually enjoyed a girls' field hockey game. The young man ventured to remind the passer-by (another classmate) that his assignment was very difficult and required intense and complete concentration on his part.

In an effort to instill realism into the stories he assigns them to write, Kemp has used tape recordings of robberies and auto collisions with mock witnesses and victims. The students are graded on how well they write the news stories they obtain from the tapes.

In two years I'll finish college and then go to the Brooklyn Park Zoo for a year of graduate work. Upon my return I've been offered a permanent job with the University's biology department as lab caretaker. I figure it will take at least five or six years for us to save enough money to get married and live comfortably. Do you think I'm doing the right thing?

Editorial Comments

Students Seek Clubs, Clubs Seek Members; Remedy Suggested

"I don't feel as if I belong," was a typical comment made by freshmen to their counselors during interviews last week. Many protested that they were interested in joining campus organizations, but didn't know how to make contact with specific groups.

The comments were rather surprising because most OU groups are frantically seeking additional members. These organizations complain that membership is so low at times that their groups aren't able to fulfill all of their purposes.

Therefore, it is apparent that there is much room in organizations for freshmen and other students who desire to belong. The problem appears to be one of communications between prospective members and organizations.

Most groups indicate that they campaign in the early fall to get members. Those who desire to join now apparently missed the early campaigns and don't know the manner in which to seek out desired clubs.

A possible solution to the problem would be for students to have access to a list of all organizations, their purposes, meeting dates and the names and phone numbers of top officers. The file could possibly be kept with Sec-

OU Coeds Stop Teams in Meet

By Carol Vetter

"Sticks" and "Obstruction" were the fouls most often committed at the field hockey conference at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln last Saturday as the Omaha University women were able to prevent the combined Peru-Doane team and the Northwestern Missouri-University of Nebraska team from scoring a goal during the afternoon competition.

Field hockey techniques were under the instruction of Dr. Amy Lofton from Western Illinois University. Teams represented were from Omaha University, University of Nebraska, Peru, Doane, Northwestern Missouri, and Kearney.

The day's events were opened with a demonstration game between the Omaha U. eleven and the University of Nebraska squad.

The game ended in a scoreless tie as the positions on the field were stressed more than individual scoring.

Among the techniques stressed during the morning instruction were dribbling, driving, tackling, dodging, passing, the left-hand lunge, goal tending, and corners. Fouls were explained and their elimination was emphasized.

In the afternoon competition, the University of Omaha, coached by Mara J. Davis, held the combined team of Peru and Doane scoreless, while producing three scores themselves. The final score remained 3-0.

In the second game, the OU eleven were faced with the combined teams of Northwestern University and the University of Nebraska. With both squads utilizing the skills emphasized during the morning workout, the game resulted in a scoreless tie.

Those making up the Omaha University squad were Mary Mooney, Liz Weil, Nancy D'Agosta, June Killion, Sharon Irwin, Judy Siders, Connie Claussen, Maxine Kuehl, Judy Eaton and Carol Vetter.

During all of the competition, field positions and techniques were accented.

OU to Clash with Tough Pitt. State

Pittsburg State, who drubbed Emporia State 50-0 last week, will oppose the University of Omaha tomorrow at the University.

The Indians seeking to escape the Central Intercollegiate Conference cellar, tackle a Pittsburg crew that has won three and lost one in CIC play. The Gorillas from Pittsburg, Kansas come into the OU contest with an overall season record of seven wins and one loss. Their only loss was to powerful St. Benedict's.

Last year in the two club's first meeting Pittsburg defeated the Indians 21-14. The Gorillas also finished second in the CIC with four wins and one loss.

OU Lose to Washburn

Omaha in losing to Washburn 7-0 last week dropped into the cellar along with the Ichobods and Fort Hays State. Each school has a 1-3 record in conference play.

The sputtering OU offense kept the defensive unit in hot water all evening, losing the ball five times via fumbles.

The stubborn Indian defense held the Ichobods five times the first half. But for one play in the third quarter they were caught flatfooted as Washburn halfback Jon Bingesser sprinted 27 yards for the game's only touchdown.

The Indians had two fine scoring opportunities squelched in the final quarter as each ended within the ten yard line.

Best Record?

A win tomorrow would assure the Indians of their best season record since 1956 when OU finished with six wins, two losses and one tie.

Head Coach Al Caniglia will use Gary Sindelar at quarterback in the final game. The 195 pound freshman completed five of 12 passes for 53 yards and rambled for 30 yards in six carries against

By Arlo Grafton

The faculty of the University of Omaha has put together a bowling league of its own. This league, although maybe not of the "Classic League" type, has its share of good bowlers.

Leroy Kozeny of team nine holds the high average of 190.

High game for the men so far this season goes to Bill Gerbracht of team 10. He rolled a 245. Gerbracht also holds the high series, a 555.

Some other respectable games put together in the faculty league include a 226 by Paul Peterson, a 215 by Rene Hlavec, a 214 by Don Pflaster and John McMillan. Pflasterer and McMillan have put together series of 554 and 550 respectively.

Athletic Secretary Serves Coaches, Works with Boys

Mrs. Barbara Thomsen smiles as she works.

"I never realized how much work is connected with each sport," commented Mrs. Barbara Thomsen, athletic department secretary.

Mrs. Thomsen has worked at Omaha University a little over a year and is secretary to all coaches. Her duties include taking dictation, answering the telephone, receptionist, and sending out the athletic department mailings. Mrs. Thomsen also works on scheduling and filling out contracts.

Mrs. Thomsen knows nearly all the boys out for athletics by name and "feels just as bad as the boys when they lose a game." Her favorite sports are baseball and football (about a tie) "I took up golf once, but because of my job I don't play much any more; I love to swim, however."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomsen live at 1902 South 62 Street, have been married five years and have no children.

Mr. Thomsen is associate director of the Livestock Foundation. He attended Morningside University and played football there.

Al Canigila typifies the feelings of the coaches when he says "we couldn't get along without her."

Miloni, Sayers Lead

Louis Miloni and Roger Sayers lead all OU backs with 392 and 321 yards respectively. Sayers has a 6.3 yard per carry average while Mike Conway has 5.9 and Wayne Backes 4.8. Miloni rounds out the top four with a 4.7 average per try. Sayers also leads in scoring with 24 points.

Dave Gibson leads the passers with 285 yards. He has completed 20 in 55 attempts.

On the receiving end Jim Kettle has caught 12 passes for 146 yards. Paul Blazevich has caught eight for 92 yards.

OU Veterans To Play in Last Games

Two senior linesmen have seen a lot of players come and go in their stay at the University of Omaha.

Chester French, 5' 9" and 185 pounds, is the only squad member to play four years at the school while Bill Moulton next in seniority has three years having used one year of eligibility at Wayne State Teacher's College.

In his four years as an OU griddy Chester has seen only three wins chalked up by Indian teams. An offensive guard and line backer on defense, he is one of the familiar faces on the tough defensive unit.

Moulton, an aggressive tackle, offsets his aggressiveness get the better part of him. Many times he has charged toward the enemy backfield before the ball was snapped.

On the other hand, Bill's alertness has cost the opposition much yardage, for the slightest movement of an offensive lineman sends the big tackle charging.

Moulton came to OU after attending Wayne where he lettered his freshman year. Lloyd Cardwell then head coach installed him at tackle, but later in the season the big 210 pounder was shifted to fullback.

Both players, wearing an Indian uniform for the last time, would like to finish their college eligibility in a winning fashion in the final contest against Pittsburgh tomorrow.

NU Wins Cross Country Contest

The Amateur Athletic Union held its annual Mid-Western cross country meet Nov. 5 in Elmwood Park.

The University of Nebraska varsity and an unattached U. of N. freshmen team ran off with six of the first ten places.

Nebraska took first place with 39½ points. They were followed by their freshman team with 63. Next came Wayne, 82; Doane 90½; Wesleyan 119; and Omaha, 136.

Ray Stevens, Nebraska, and Don White, Doane, finished in a tie for first place. Stevens' and White's time of 21.06 set a new meet record.

Dennis Dunning lead the Omaha entries. Dunning came in 16th with a time of 23:35. Also placing for Omaha were Nick Dixon, 25:08; Gene Somer, 25:34; Bob Gregg, 25:39; Bob Jueckstack, 26:41; and Terry Maldes, 29:56.

Jesse Henderson, Omaha, ran unattached and finished in 25:13.

Don Weitzenkamp, Doane, ran third with a time of 21:35.

In AAU competition all men are expected to compete regardless of his school eligibility or whether or not they even attend school.

Omaha's next meet is to be held today over a 4-mile course in Elmwood park. Wayne State provides the opposition.

The Central Intercollegiate Conference meet will be held at Elmwood park Saturday, Nov. 19. Nov. 26th the NAIA national championship will be held here. Twelve schools are entered with eighty runners scheduled to compete. Entries from California, Wisconsin, New Mexico, North Dakota and Texas are to be represented.

Violation was of Article I Section 4 of the Panhellenic Rush rules which states: "There shall be no contact of any kind with rushees of high school students or anyone entering the University under whatever title the sorority or its members may give it during the school year, the summer or during formal rushing."

Zeta's were placed on probation for the remainder of this semester for violating this rule at an Omaha high school. Solicitation for the "Cutest Pan" contest was not included in the protest nor was it considered as grounds for the penalty.

These regulations included in the Panhellenic Constitution and By laws were adopted by the delegates to Panhellenic Council.

OU Students Make Migration Success

By Pam Stronberg

Neither wind nor cold nor pessimistic score predictions kept Omaha University football enthusiasts from migrating to Topeka, Kansas last Friday to see the OU-Washburn game.

Spirits were high as Indian supporters outyelled the Washburn fans throughout the game. The Omaha University band and Indiannes provided pre-game and half-time programs along with the Washburn band and twirlers.

After the game, students from both schools warmed up at a dance in the Washburn Memorial Union to music provided by a Topeka combo and Omaha's combination cheerleader-guitarist Chuck Colvin.

Migrating students, players, coaches, faculty members and parents stayed in the Jayhawk Hotel in downtown Topeka.

Parties in the rooms ended Migration Day with students talking, dancing, playing bridge and hide-and-seek from concerned adults until drowsiness, accompanied by the inevitable room-check, forced students into their rooms for a very few hours of sleep.

"Hats off to students on this successful migration," said Jack Malik, band director and migration coordinator.

Our hats off to you, Mr. Malik. It was great! Where do we go next year?

Street Becomes 'OU Speedway'

The drive running from the Fieldhouse to the Gene Eppley Library will be closed from 8 to 10 p.m. on weekday evenings.

Campus patrolman Bob Harder said there have been some near misses of hitting pedestrians at the crosswalks at this time. He said it was evident that this drive was becoming a speedway during the night class hours.

However, Building and Grounds believes the violators to be Student Center "addicts" rather than CAE students.

Earnest Voter Faints

The decision to pick the right man for president weighed heavily on the minds of many people across the nation election day.

The strain proved too much for voter Dorothy Nelson, who fainted in the voting booth in the Omaha University Fieldhouse.

The Omaha Rescue Squad speeded to the scene and removed Miss Nelson for treatment for shock.
